EXCAVATORS SELECT

The land improvement segment of the heavy construction industry consists of many diverse operations. Many land improvement contractors are former farmers who may still farm on a part time basis. Many are relatively small contractors with very expensive equipment. Due to their farming background, many contractors are located in remote areas. Contractors are primarily engaged in irrigation, drainage system construction, excavation, and terracing of land. Any construction which involves the movement and improvement of land may be performed by a land improvement contractor.
